About the Book

Can a Sheriff with Trust Issues and a Woman Who's Lost Her Faith Find Peace and Happiness?

Liz Summer, attempting to hide from her abusive boyfriend, is arrested. The threat of prosecution for her unwitting involvement in an illegal scheme hangs over her. With her life literally in the hands of the county sheriff, Liz has no option but to trust a total stranger. Will he believe in her innocence and help keep her safe or prosecute her to the fullest extent of the law.

Sheriff Roy McMann isn't sure of Liz's involvement in a crime, but he recognizes her physical bruises for what they are. Instead of incarceration, he offers her a clown job to entertain the local children and keep her identity hidden while he works to discover the full truth.

Liz wants to help Roy learn to trust again and mend his broken heart. Roy vows to protect her from her ex and help restore her faith.

With the Lord's help, can they clear the path to happiness and fulfill their tattered dreams?

Discussion:

1. Liz is on the run from an abusive boyfriend. Have you ever been in a situation where you were forced to run or stand and fight?
2. Liz made bad decisions resulting in an unhappy outcome. Have you ever been caught up in an issue when you should have been focused on the Lord's plan?
3. Liz lost her faith in God because of someone's influence. Has He come into your heart and changed your life?
4. Roy's wife betrayed him and left him brokenhearted. Has someone you loved hurt you, and were you willing to forgive and forget?
