About the Book

‘Tis the season for unexpected gifts.

High school teacher Reed Mason wants a family to call his own. When his prayers seem to remain unanswered, he expects to spend Christmas alone working on home improvement projects. But plans change when a chance encounter with a child’s letter to God touches his heart. Inspired to help someone in need, Reed sets his sights on assisting his beautiful new neighbor.

Independent-minded widow and single mom Emma Richards wants a fresh start. When she moves to Shenandoah Valley with her son, she expects to handle life’s challenges on her own. But plans change when her handsome neighbor takes a sudden interest in her well-being.

As Reed maneuvers his way into her heart, Emma sets out to discover his true intentions.

TITLE: A Dad for Christmas

Discussion:

Question 1: Emma Richards has her mind set on being independent and single until she meets Reed Mason. Pride tempts her to refuse his help and keep him at a distance. But, when she sets aside her pride and allows him to assist her, romance blooms promising a beautiful future. How might Emma's life have been different if she hadn't released her pride and given Reed a chance?

Answer 1:

Question 2: Reed thinks his prayers for a family have gone unanswered, but remains faithful that God will answer in His timing. How do you think his unwavering faith affected his journey to finding his own family?

Answer 2:

Question 3: As a six year old, Luke Richards brings an uplifting and fun element to the story. What can we learn from this child's perspective as he trusts without doubt and forgives without hesitation?

Answer 3:

Question 4: Life is full of distractions and time consuming obligations. When Reed finds the child's letter to God, he promises to pray for the child's wishes. When he follows through, God leads him to Emma and Luke. How might things have turned out differently if he had become distracted and not read the letter? Have you made promises you didn't keep because life got too busy? What opportunities could you have missed?
